

FIG. 2. Responses elicited by two stimuli from a V1 supragranular complex cell that are equal in response strength and different in temporal pattern. Two temporal features can be used to differentiate these responses. The first is the presence of the 75 ms gap in the early response on the left and not on the right. The second is the progressively decreasing strength seen predominantly in the response on the right.